How to sell Divoox

A guide for salespeople

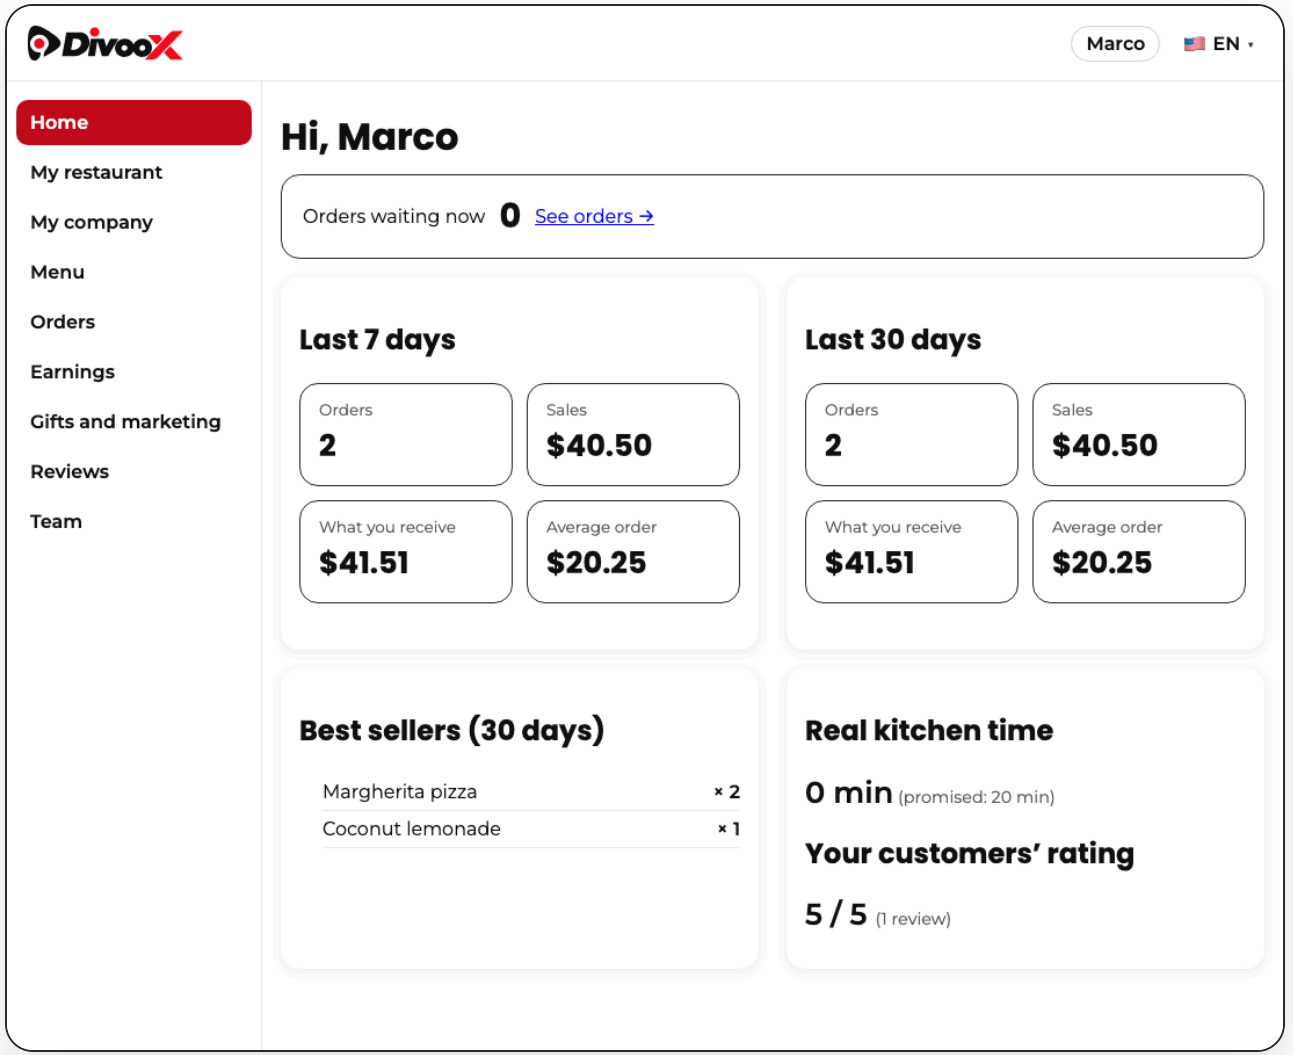

What you sell

- Divoox is the delivery app: the customer orders, the restaurant cooks and a driver delivers.
- Food, groceries and more, in the app and at divoox.com.
- You bring the restaurant new customers without hiring drivers.

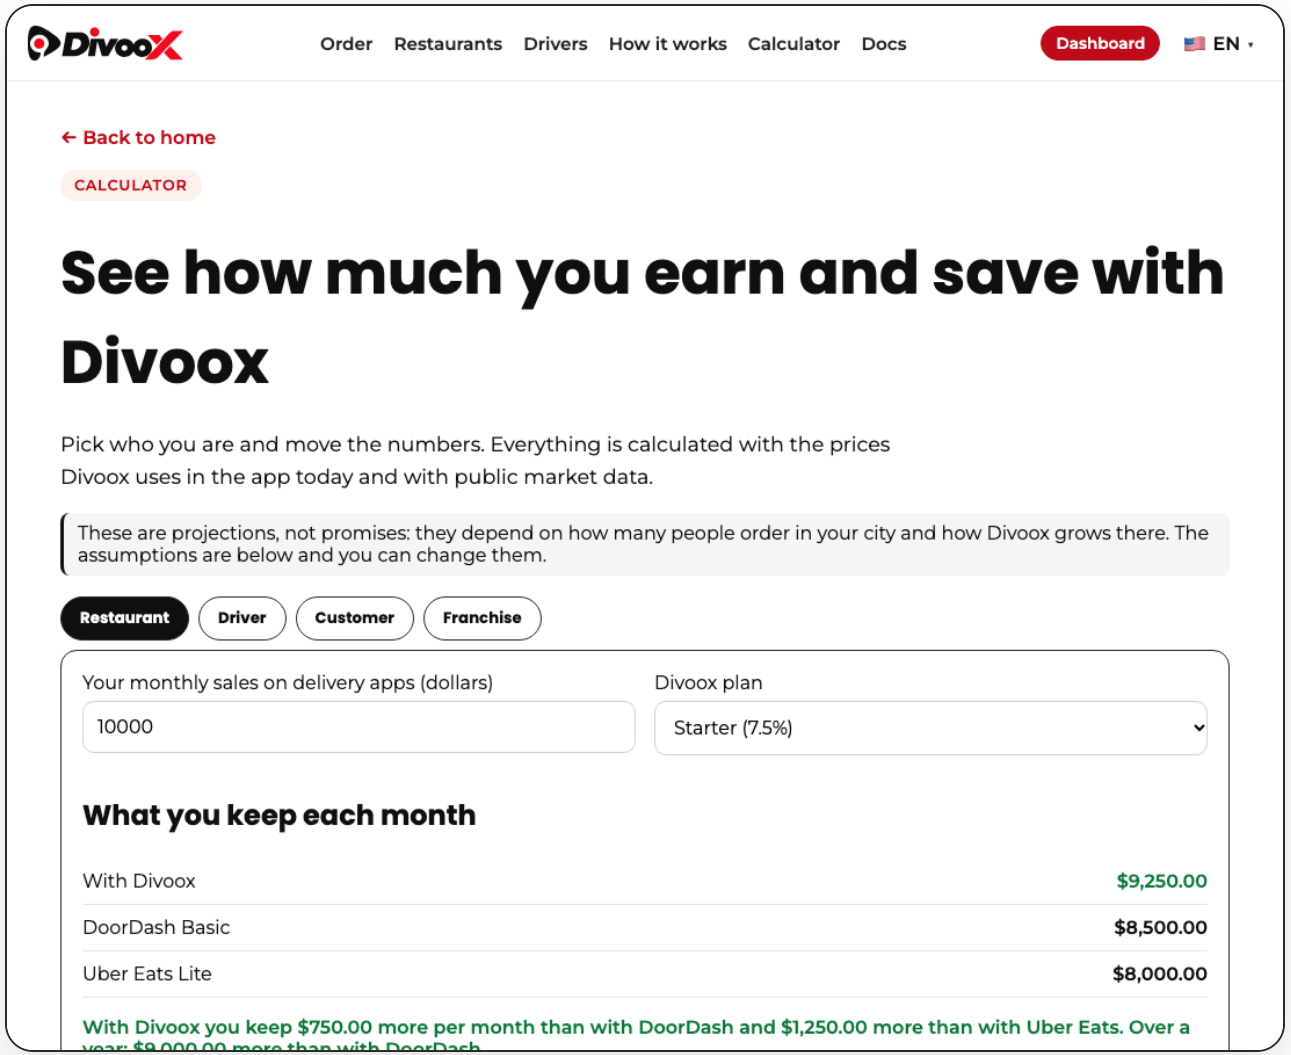

What the restaurant gets

- New customers through “You might like” and returning ones through “Order again”.
- Scheduled and group orders: more sales outside rush hour.
- A dashboard with sales, busy hours and customers at a glance.

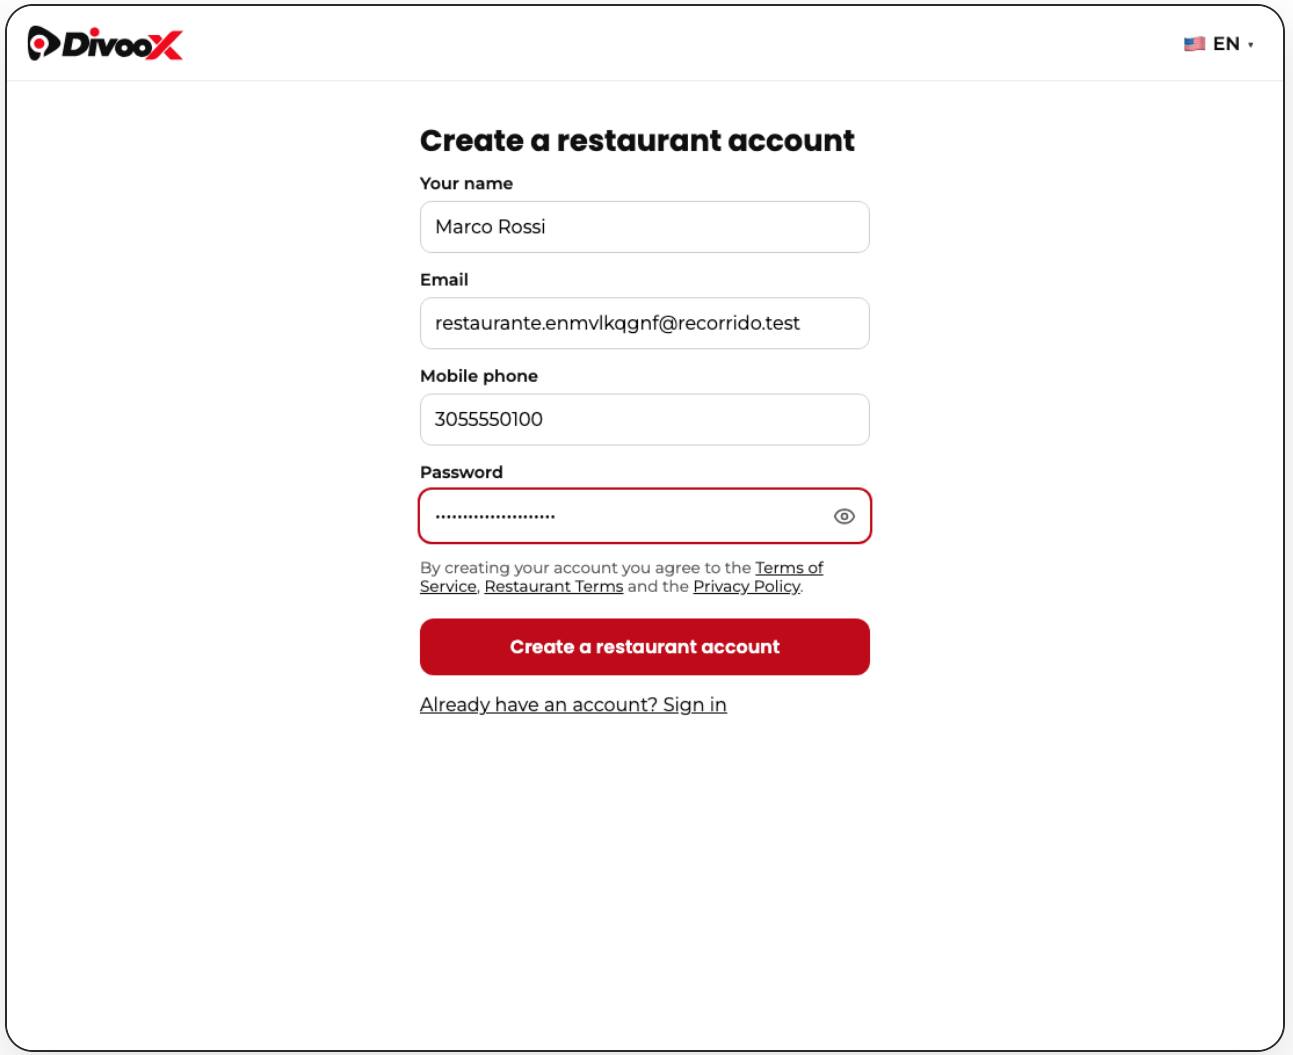

What it costs

- Don’t make up numbers: open the calculator at divoox.com with them.
- They enter their sales and see what they receive after commission.
- If they have questions about their case, connect them with our team.

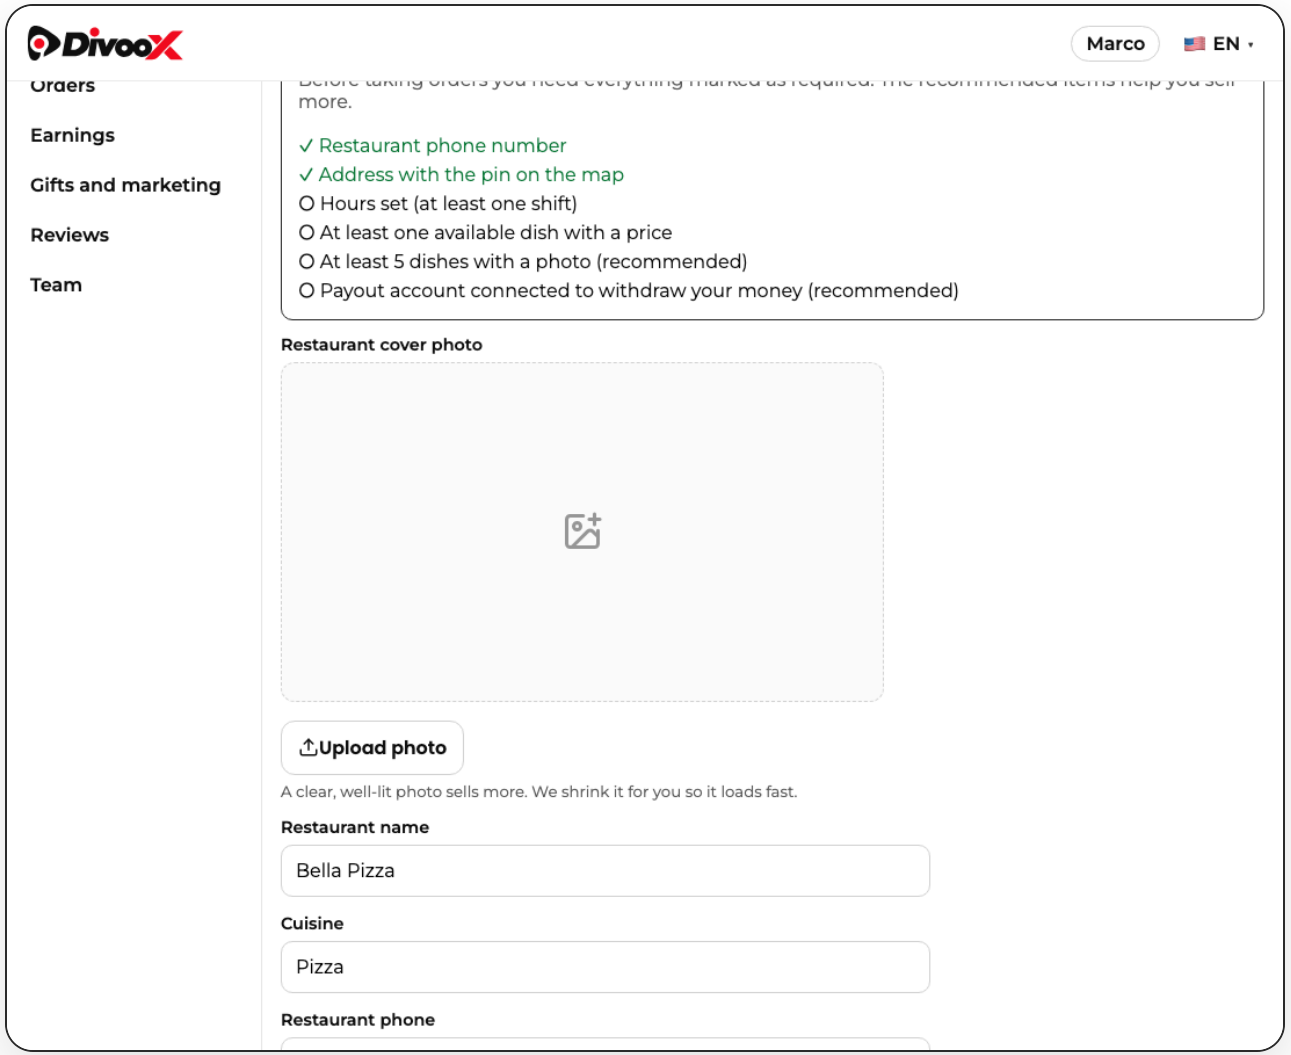

Sign-up, with you there

- They sign up at divoox.com/restaurants with their email and store details.
- They get an email to confirm the account.
- Do it with them during the visit: it takes five minutes.

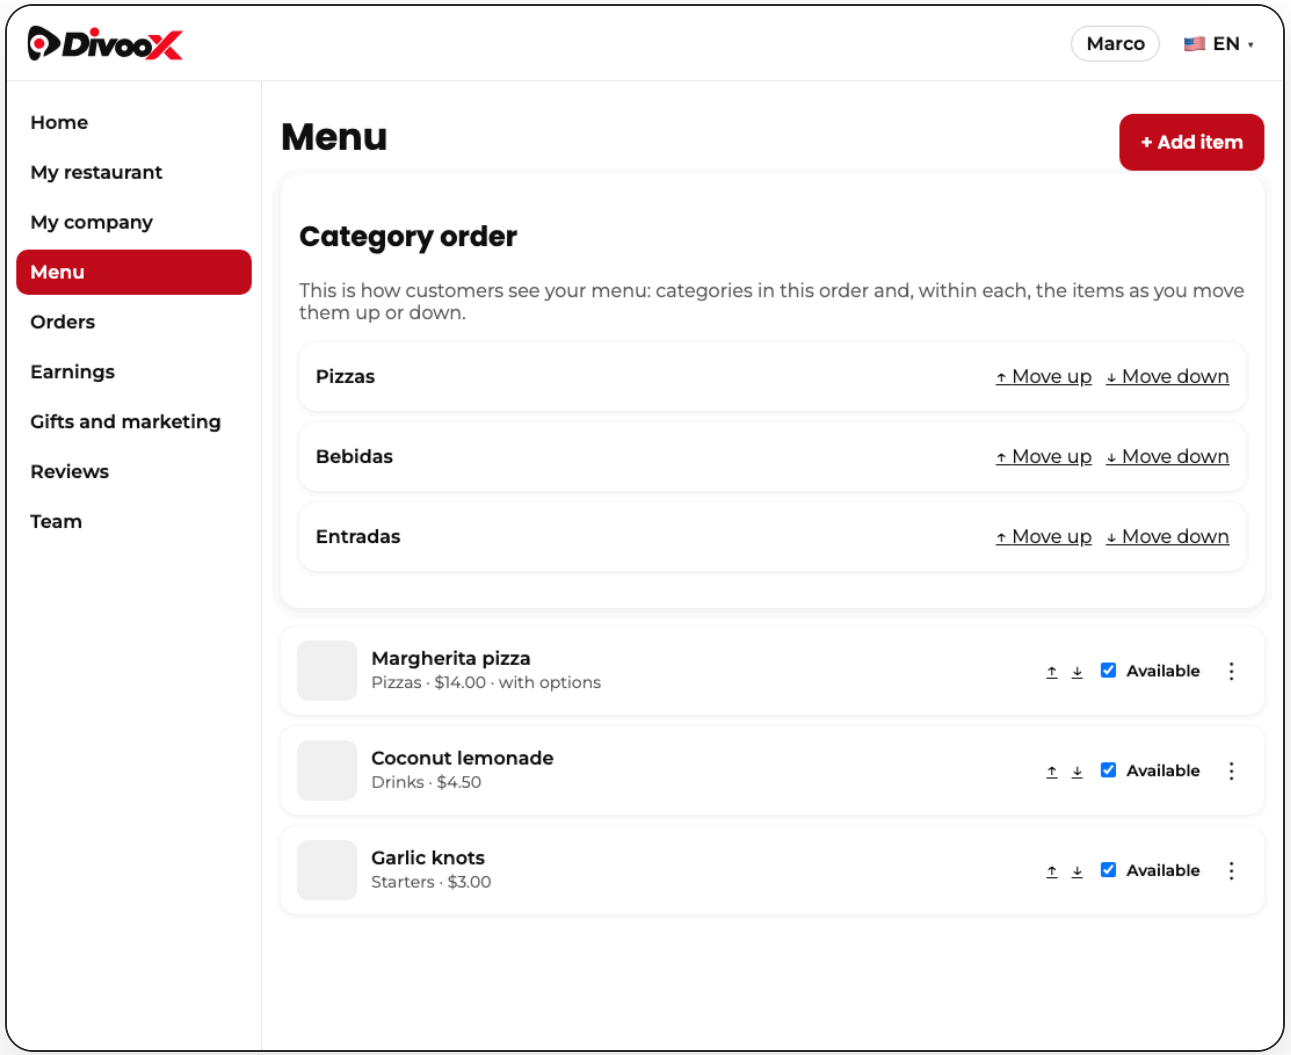

Their checklist to open

- The dashboard shows what's missing: phone, address, hours and at least one priced item.
- Recommended: five items with photos and their payout account connected.
- Once everything is green, our team reviews and activates them.

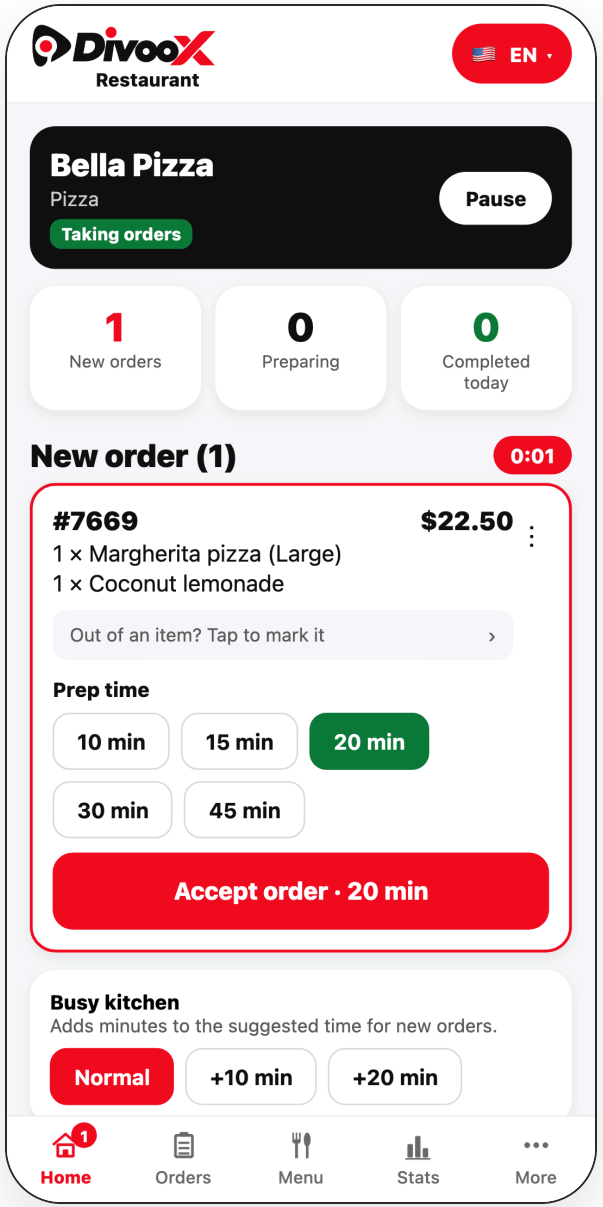

A menu that sells

- Clear, well-lit photos sell more.
- Options per item (size, extras) and dietary tags (vegan, gluten-free, spicy).
- Anything that runs out is marked sold out with one tap.

Their first order

- It rings on the tablet or computer, and they accept it with their prep time.
- They can print the kitchen ticket and mark it ready.
- The driver arrives, confirms the pickup and takes it to the customer.
